DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 31-39, 41, 42 and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Schmitz (6,755,613). Schmitz discloses a steam turbine component assembly, comprising: an inner housing 121 having a surface exposed to a high temperature operating environment and an opposite surface exposed to a lower temperature operating environment where the higher temperature environment is over 600 degrees C (Column 8, lines 1-8); an outer housing 122 that surrounds the inner housing; and a thermal barrier coating 82 having a pre-selected porosity, thickness and material composition applied to the higher temperature surface effective to control thermal deformation of the inner and outer housings relative to each other. The Examiner notes that any thermal barrier coating would have a porosity, thickness and material composition and therefore the Examiner holds the position that the coating of Schmitz would have those properties pre-determined prior to applying the coating to the steam turbine component. Schmitz also disclose the substrate being ferritic (iron) based.

Schmitz further discloses applying the coating at locations where components are exposed to the steam. The Examiner notes that claims 34 and 37-41 cite particular location where the coating is applied. Since this is viewed as intended use and Schmitz discloses that the coating can be applied in various locations it is the position of the Examiner that Schmitz reads on Applicant's intended use claims.

The applied reference has a common assignee with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 43-44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schmitz in view of Beele (5,740,515). Schmitz discloses all of the claimed as stated in the 102(e) rejection made above except for the coating comprising Zirconium oxide or titanium oxide.

Beele teaches a thermal barrier coating comprising zirconium oxide layer 2 and an intermediate layer 4 comprising the composition of MCrAlX, where M is iron cobalt or nickel and X is yttrium. Since it is well known in the turbine art to use thermal barrier coatings and both Schmitz and Beele disclose coatings applied to turbine components in high temperature settings, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide a coating as taught by Beele to the turbine component of Schmitz for the purpose of protecting the component from thermal stresses.

CONCLUSION

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 45-47 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
